NORTHAM NEARLY BURNT!

If There Had Been a Fire Damage Might Have Been Awful.

What might have been a disastrous fire in Northam Towers was nipped in the bud by the gallant fire-laddies of a nearby chemical company Sunday night. The blaze—or rather the smoke, for at no time was a blaze to be seen—was discovered by a group of polers, who, not being used to smoke, are annoyed by a very slight amount of it. It was found to be issuing from under the window-seat in the janitor's office.

At first water was poured on the window-seat in large quantities, but the smoke, nowise discouraged, continued to issue forth in blue clouds. The situation was critical. A mob had formed outside the window and was shouting orders and advice. Someone had a happy thought, and telephoned the chemical.

By the time the fire-fighters arrived, the smoke was beginning to grow pale, and to assume a bored look. But one should never take chances with fire. The gallant fire-laddies quickly ran up a ladder and climbed into the room without a thought of the awful chances they were running, as the room was full of students. A mighty cheer rent the air at the sight of the gallant fire-laddies climbing up to his first-floor window, especially as the door was open. But the danger was at least trebled by choosing the window, and their act in so doing deserved the applause.

The smoke had ceased to issue from under the window-seat but the room was still full of it. Hastily spraying the room with chemicals to clear the air and cool the walls, the gallant fire-laddies brought axes and quickly chopped out the window-seat and floor, being desirous of discovering how the smoke started. Beneath the window-seat was found a cigarette butt and a little heap of charred paper. If the firemen had not arrived and chopped out the window-seat we might never have known what caused all the fuss.

To the casual observer the reason for tearing up the floor may not have been so obvious. The janitor explained, when seen by a Tripod reporter, that it was his idea to have the firemen do this, as he was expecting to put in a parquet floor soon anyway.

The able assistance of the fire-laddies in this our time of peril is greatly appreciated by the students. The former were glad to help us as they remember at least one experience when the students bravely extinguished a dangerous fire in the neighborhood of the college when the firemen were powerless to stay the raging element on account of one of the laddies, in the excitement of the alarm, having somewhat carelessly forgotten to bring along the key to the water hydrant.

IVY IN PREPARATION.

Annual Will be Built on Unique Lines This Year.

The Ivy board is now hard at work on the 1912 year-book, expecting to send one-half of it to press shortly after the mid-year examinations, and the other half before the Easter vacation. The board expects the advertising revenue to exceed that of former years, thus providing for a greater number of cuts and illustrations. The most noteworthy innovation will be that of giving a short paragraph to each individual member of the junior class.

The board intends to use a considerable part of the book for literary work especially that of a humorous nature. To meet this requirement, the editors wish the undergraduate body to submit work of this kind to the board. They would also like to communicate at once with such alumni and undergraduates as have ability in making drawings or cartoons suitable for publication in the Ivy.

Specimen work should be submitted, and assignments will be given to those whose work shows talent. Interesting snap-shots of views and people about college are also desired.

The contract for the printing of the book has been awarded to the Hausauer-Jones Co. of Buffalo, and that of engraving to the Electric City Engraving Co., also of Buffalo. The fact that these companies will have charge of the mechanical part, gives assurance that this part of the work will be well cared for.

SUNDAY CHAPEL.

Professor Brenton preached an exceptionally good sermon Sunday morning in the college chapel, his text being "Jacob, how old art thou?" He brought out very forcefully the idea that by the use of a little extra personality and a trifle more effort any desired goal might be attained and success achieved. The singing was good although the Te Deum might have attained a greater degree of excellence if it had had a few rehearsals. Whitehead's solo was greatly enjoyed by the congregation although his voice was somewhat affected by a severe cold.

A men's chorus has been organized by the undergraduates of Wisconsin for the purpose of rehearsing and producing organized singing outside of the glee clubs.

PREPARATIONS FOR PROM.

Week of Gaiety to Follow Mid-Year Exams.

Junior week is fast approaching, and everything seems to be in shape to make it the most successful one in the history of the college. The committee which promises us such a succession of gay events is composed of the following: L. H. McClure, chairman; C. Carpenter, secretary and treasurer; A. E. Rankin; E. F. Pettigrew; C. R. Whipple, and W. E. Steven. Most of the music for the promenade has been selected, but if anyone has any further ideas or desires in this line, he may submit them to the chairman.

On the afternoon of Thursday, February the 2nd, the I. K. A. fraternity opens the week by giving a tea at its chapter house on Vernon Street. This is followed in the evening by three dances, one at the D. K. E. fraternity house, one at the Alpha Chi Rho fraternity house, and one at Saint Anthony's Hall. The Alpha Chi Rho dance starts a house party given by that fraternity which will last all during junior week. On Friday afternoon the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity gives a tea, and in the evening comes the college German.

By far the most pretentious tea of the year is the college tea given on Saturday afternoon of junior week by President and Mrs. Luther. This is an annual event to which Hartford society turns out in a body, and with the possible exception of the two promenades, is the social event of the year.

Saturday night, the mandolin and glee clubs give a concert, which is followed by an informal dance. A great many of us have little idea of the amount of work and time which these two clubs have been putting in, whipping themselves into shape for this occasion. The concert at Waterbury was a good herald of what we may expect to hear junior week. The programs will be about the same, except that it will be better rendered, and no one who heard the concert at Waterbury will deny the fact that it was an "A number 1".

On the afternoon of Sunday the 5th will be held the "College Vespers" service, according to old established custom. This is one of the most beautiful services given in the college chapel during the year, and the choir, under the leadership of J. J. Whitehead, '13, has been working to make it even more beautiful than it has been in former years.

The Psi Upsilon Fraternity gives a tea on Monday afternoon, and on Monday night junior week closes with the supreme effort of the junior class, the junior promenade.

CHANGES IN TRIPOD BOARD.

Clark, Rees and Evison Resign After Long Service.

An important meeting of the Tripod board was held last Friday evening. Several changes in the board took place. Clark, '11, treasurer, and Rees, '11, alumni editor, resigned from the board after having served on it since their freshman year. Cook, '13, and Swift, '13, were elected to fill their places. Evison, '12, having left college on account of illness, Case, '13, was elected to the position of circulation manager. These changes reduce the number on the board to eleven, and it was decided at this meeting to pursue the policy of electing men to the board only when there were vacancies, and to allow no men to remain on the board who were not doing active work.

The reports of last year's business department were read, and it was found that The Tripod was in debt about $180. The report showed, however, that this amount will be more than made up under the new methods of managing The Tripod, and from the increased circulation this year.

"NOW THEN—TRINITY!"

EDITORIAL.

Again have Hymen and his host entered and snatched one of our number from us. This is getting to be an event of almost too frequent occurrence. As all great movements must have small beginnings, we confess to no little apprehension as we think of our possible future.

Who shall say but that a generation hence will see half the college composed of benedicts? And yet another generation, and single men will be rarities? Persecuted and harassed by their jealous fellows, who knows but that they will have to form a sort of Bachelors' Union for mutual protection! This would be an advanced degree, possibly, in the Anti-Fussing League, which, we regret to say, had to disband, all its members having been expelled for violating the oath upon which the order was founded.

Is it necessary to sound the annual mid-year warning to athletes? It seems to us that it ought not to be. But the perennial probationing of valuable athletic material shows no signs of dying out, and there probably will never come a day when past experience will not be a sad warning.

It seems hard to realize that a man can be so utterly lacking in college spirit—leaving personal considerations out of the discussion—as to allow himself to be disqualified from participating in games in which his presence might make all the difference between defeat and victory. To some extent the average man's scholarship is personal matter; but in the case of athletes it is a social duty to pass courses. Every man in college can keep off probation if he wants to take the trouble. There is only one verdict that the college body can pass upon the baseball or track man who fails to do so in the coming examinations.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES.

Seventeen graduates of Yale were elected to various offices of importance at the recent Connecticut election and six in the New York election.

Columbia, which does not have an agricultural department, is offering a series of lectures on economical agriculture, given by experts in that science.

Williams has added 4,000 pieces to its collection of Indian relics. The total collection is valued at $25,000.

Andrew Carnegie will celebrate his 75th anniversary by making a gift of $3,500,000 to the Carnegie Technology Schools in Pittsburgh. His previous gifts to these institutions are $20,000,000.

Six seniors and nine juniors at the University of Wisconsin have been elected to compose the first student court to try students charged with violating the university rules.

Chicago University has a Short Story Club which meets regularly to discuss original narratives written by members of English courses in the university.

A combined glee, banjo and mandolin club at Princeton will take a 2,300 mile trip through the South this winter.

Statistics which have been compiled by the Yale News indicate that as many as 1,868 men have been engaged during the fall in some branch of athletics.

The University of Pennsylvania library has now passed beyond the 300,000 mark in the number of books on its shelves, placing it among the first rank of University libraries in this country.

President Welch of Ohio Wesleyan said in a chapel speech: "Profanity implies a lack of intellect and lack of discrimination in the use of words."

The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company,

Hartford, Conn.

Why should I insure my life?
Because it is a debt you owe to those who are dependent upon your earnings for their support.

You admit that it is your duty to supply their needs from day to day, but forget that it is equally your duty to provide an ever ready and sufficient equivalent for your earning power, which your family stands in constant jeopardy to lose by your premature death.

Guard your family against disaster and yourself against dependency in old age.

When should I insure my life?
Now! The cost will never be less, and to-morrow you may not be able to obtain insurance at any price.

Even if others are not now dependent upon you, take time by the forelock and you will be the better able to meet future responsibilities, and at a smaller premium.

Where shall I insure my life?
In a purely Mutual Company.
In a company that earns, declares, and pays annual dividends.
In a company that is doing a conservative business.

Such a Company is The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. It furnishes perfect protection at lowest cost.
